FRYE & SANDERS KICK OFF LARGEST UTILITIES UNDERGROUNDING PROJECT IN SAN DIEGO

Project will benefit over 900 customers

San Diego, CA- Today, City Councilmember Donna Frye and Mayor Jerry Sanders kicked off the largest undergrounding project in San Diego history in the community of Serra Mesa. Frye and Sanders were joined by officials from SDG&E, Time-Warner Cable and AT&T.

“Undergrounding overhead utility lines in our communities is about quality of life for residents and beautifying our communities,” said Frye, “Residents should be able to look out their windows and see their neighborhood instead of utility lines and I intend to make that a reality by working closely with Mayor Sanders, SDG&E, Time-Warner Cable and AT&T.”

Mayor Jerry Sanders stated that, "Undergrounding utility lines throughout all of our city's neighborhoods is important to the residents of San Diego and it is crucial that all undergrounding projects stay on schedule and are done as quickly as possible."

The project will benefit over 900 customers and include over 33,000 feet of cabling. The city will underground 1,000 miles of overhead utility wires over the next 25 years. Frye has worked diligently to underground overhead utility lines throughout the Sixth District and continues to push for larger utility undergrounding projects throughout her district's communities.

Frye is the Councilmember for the Sixth Council District of the City of San Diego, which includes the communities of Clairemont, Kearny Mesa, Linda Vista, Mission Bay, Mission Valley and Serra Mesa. She has served on the City Council representing District Six since June 2001. She is currently the chair of the City Council's Natural Resources and Culture committee. Councilmember Frye grew up and lives in the Clairemont area.
